Warriors Play George Mason

Wakefield High School's basketball team travels to George Mason this evening for a twin-bill in which the Warriors hope to hit a winning stride after dropping their last three games.

Coach Robbie Robinson's lads have been plagued with illness lately but the Warriors are coming up with a couple of boys who are beginning to look like good ball players in Warren Watson and Don Richards. In the last three contests, while his mates were floundering around and making mistakes, Watson has been hitting the hoops for an average of 17 points per game, while the last two battles have found Richards knocking up a 12.5 record.

Henry Mayo went scoreless in the Warriors' last fruitless outing with St. Stephen's, but the tall lad is expected to find the range tonight for a few markers at least.

Wakefield slipped under the 500 mark in falling before the St. Stephen's quintet last week and a win would bring the Warriors back up to that figure since their current record is five wins and six losses.
